

Northern California PET Imaging

The Area's Most Renowned Imaging Center

Northern California PET Imaging Center (NCPIC) was established in 1992 as a not-for-profit community benefit organization. The organization was the first freestanding outpatient PET center in the nation, with the first whole-body PET scanner, and was designed to provide the local community with the most advanced molecular imaging technologies available.

NCPIC has established itself among the most prestigious imaging centers in the nation, with an impressive medical staff made up of physicians specially trained and solely focused on PET and CT molecular imaging. In addition to growing its reputation, NCPIC has also enhanced its service offerings to include an array of the latest molecular scan technologies to assist in the detection and diagnosis of several illnesses including cancer.

Patient Care and Compassion Is Our First Priority

The first priority at NCPIC is patient care and compassion. While technology is critical to the overall treatment plan of the patient, our first concern is ensuring that the patient is informed, prepared and comfortable. We also can assist with special needs of some patients including:

- Large Patients – With the largest opening available, our scanner can accommodate patients up to 500 lbs.
- Anxiety and Claustrophobia – Open structure eliminates many of these symptoms seen in traditional scanners.

- Children – Our PET scanner is 50% faster than others which makes children's scans much easier.
- Convenient Locations – In addition to the main office in Sacramento, NCPIC has a mobile scanner that visits six other locations throughout the Northern California region.

We Make It Easy for Our Referring Doctors

The staff at NCPIC is responsive to all physician requests. All scans are read within one business day. Easy online access to reports and images is available to physicians. In addition, same day or next day scheduling is possible at any of our locations.
